Summary: This isn't a story. It isn't even a one-shot. It is a memorial monolougue for Noble Team and their sacrifices on Reach.

My Memorial For Noble Team

A.N.: Spartan Ninja: I wrote this on a whim after witnessing the Halo: Reach cut scenes. I don't own Halo, but I will own Halo Reach. This isn't a regular story. It's just a short monologue dedicated to Noble Team. Enjoy.

My Memorial for Noble Team

2000 hours, August 30, 2589 (Military Calendar), all UNSC Space and Planets, all radio and television broadcasts

When the Covenant attacked Reach, Noble Team answered. When they fought they put in everything they had into it. They were true Spartans. It's thanks to them humanity is still here today. There victory led to the Master Chief's victory, and his led to ours. But Noble's victory didn't come without sacrifice. Jorge, Kat, Carter, Emile, and the mysterious Noble 6, as they were known, all perished in the fight. They gave their lives to save Reach and humanity. Despite their best efforts, however, they fell with Reach. Their bodies became part of the earth as it was glassed. But their memory and courage live on with all of us, as well their last surviving member. Noble 3, or Jun as he's called, still walks among us today, and with him, the ghosts of Noble Team. He is a living memorial to the sacrifices Noble Team gave. We salute you Jun, along with your fallen comrades. They will never be forgotten.

Remember Reach.

Remember Noble Team.
